ABSTRACT

ANALYSIS OF ILLCUTIONARY SPEECH BY THE STUDENTS OF

ELEVENTH GRADE AT SMAN 1 PUNGGUR

By :

SETYARINI TRI WIJAYANTI

This study aims to describe the use of Illocutionary Speech by the students of the eleventh grade at SMAN 1 Punggur, and the most dominant type of Illocutionary Speech by the students of the eleventh grade at SMAN 1 Punggur. Type of illocutionary acts in this study consisted of five types, namely assertive, directive, expressive, commissive, declaration.

This research is a descriptive study using qualitative methods. The data in this study were obtained from observation, interviews and documentation. Data analysis techniques use qualitative descriptions.

The first research result is related to the use of Illocutionary Speech by the students of the eleventh grade at SMAN 1 Punggur. The use of illocutionary acts on the students' speaking skill is dominated by the use of appropriate illocutionary acts. The second research result is about the most dominant type of illocutionary act. The use of illocutionary acts in the Assertive type dominates the use of other illocutionary acts types. This was because there were 51% Assertive illocutionary acts in the student's conversation.

Keywords: Illocutionary acts , Speaking Skill, Qualitative Research.

CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

A. Background of Research

English is a language of verbal and written communication. Communication is understanding and revealing information, thoughts, feelings, and developing technological science and culture. Adequate English communication is a requirement in modern times in view of its use as the language of international associations.

In the process of producing or communicating the language in English, it can be done both spoken and written. communication can convey information in a complete way because much of the information is not translated in writing and thus produces a quality communication product.

Speaking is a skill used to convey thoughts or ideas to someone through speaking orally. Speaking is also used as a means of communication between people in oral form. The creation of a good communication is supported by good speaking skills as well.

The benefits of mastering speaking are very important in the communication process, because by having good speaking the information conveyed is received well and clearly to the recipient. In addition, the benefits of good speaking mastery can also increase self-confidence, grow leadership skills, and make it easier to convey ideas effectively.

One of the important activities in speaking is illocutionary acts . Illocutionary acts is produced as part of social interaction. Talking about illocutionary acts s, of course cannot be separated from the speaker and addressee, but also the context of the narrative, knowledge, about the parties involved in the narrative, and the intent of the narrative. Illocutionary acts are a means of expressing thoughts and feelings. Illocutionary acts are also a component of language use.

The functions of illocutionary acts are assertive, expressive, directive, commissive, and declarations. The representative function was found in eleven utterances, the expressive function in ten utterances, the directive function in four utterances, the commissive function in four utterances and the declaration function in one utterance.

Based on the explanation above, the researcher has conducted a pre-survey to find out the problems of the students in learning English, especially in speaking skills in The eleventh grade at SMAN 1 Punggur , the researcher got data about speaking scores from the English teacher who provide archives of student assignments. The results of the pre-survey are illustrated in the following table:

The pre-survey results
The students' Speaking Skill of the eleventh grade at SMAN 1
Punggur

No	Grade	Frequency	Percentages	Criteria
1	0-74	20 students	69%	Fair
2	75-85	6 students	21%	adequate
3	85-100	3 students	10%	Good
		29 students

Based on the results of the pre-survey illustrated in the table above, it can be seen that the students' speaking scores are dominated by the fair passing grade. This shows that the students' speaking ability is classified as weak. In addition, in the pre-survey interview process, the researcher made observations, and interviews with the eighth grade English teacher. From the results of observations and interviews, the researcher found the illocutionary acts phenomenon in the speaking process.

Based on the explanation above, it is known that the illocutionary acts phenomenon in speaking is an important thing to research, it is because based on the results of the pre-survey, the researcher found that the quality of student speaking is strongly influenced by the illocutionary acts conditions that exist in these students. In this case, the researcher intends to examine more deeply the phenomenon of illocutionary acts on speaking, in this case the researcher conducted a qualitative research entitled "An Analysis of Illocutionary Speech by the students of the Eleventh Grade at SMAN 1 Punggur".

B. Research Questions

The researcher sets the research questions as follows:

1. What are the use of Illocutionary Speech by students of the eleventh grade at SMAN 1 Punggur?
2. What are the most dominant type of Illocutionary Speech by students of the eleventh grade at SMAN 1 Punggur?

C. Objectives and Benefits of the research

1. Objectives of the research

The objectives of this research are as follows:

- a. To describe the use of Illocutionary Speech by the students of the eleventh grade at SMAN 1 Punggur.
- b. To analyze the most dominant type of Illocutionary Speech by the students of the eleventh grade at SMAN 1 Punggur.

2. Benefits of the Research

- a. For the students

This research is expected to provide benefits to students by helping them learn English, especially speaking skills. Illocutionary acts in the process of learning Englishspeaking skill, it is expected to be more motivated and directed in the learning process. This is because in the application of illocutionary acts content in conversation, it is hoped that the students can develop their speaking quality by paying attention to the linguistic and non-linguistic basics of the English speaking process.

b. For the Teachers

This research is expected to be useful for English teachers to be able to provide an alternative discourse on the use of English teaching techniques, especially in speaking skills, through this application the teacher can know clearly about the quality of the students' English, especially speaking skills by getting an overview of the students' scores from the test. test that has been given by the researcher. In addition the teacher can also evaluate the effectiveness of the use of illocutionary acts in the process of learning English, especially speaking skills. Therefore the teacher can decide to implement and develop this strategy further.

c. For the Other the researcher

This researcher is expected to be useful for other researchers as a reference or reference for them to conduct research on the same topic, or related specifically to the use of illocutionary acts in learning speaking. Through this research, it is also hoped that other researchers are not only get information related to theories about illocutionary acts as well as about practice steps related to how toactualize the implementation of illocutionary acts implementation in learning speaking skill.

D. Prior Research

In conducting this research, the researcher considers the prior research of previous research to take the theoretical and applicative benefits of the research. The first previous research was written by NLE Subagiasih, PK Nitiasih, IG Budasi with the research title "Analysis of illocutionary acts during speaking class at SMP PGRI 5 Denpasar"¹ The research method used by this research is Descriptive Qualitative. The research objective is this research at and analyzing the types of illocutionary acts and the functions of illocutionary acts during EFL learning in SMP PGRI 5 Denpasar. Therefore the result of the research is the result of the observation revealing that the most frequent pedagogical function of illocutionary acts used by the students and teachers at SMP PGRI 5 Denpasar was collaborative. The finding of teacher illocutionary acts used commissive type.

Both of these studies have similarities, another similarity lies in the research method. This is because both of these studies use qualitative methods. The research sample is the students of SMP PGRI 5 Denpasar. While this research has a sample of the eleventh grade at SMAN 1 Punggur.

In conducting this research, the researcher considers the prior research of previous research to take the theoretical and applicative benefits of the research. The first previous research was written by Agus Hidayat with the title "Illocutionary acts force behind words"². The research method used by this research is Qualitative Research. The objective of the research is The goals of teaching illocutionary acts in the classroom should be directed in the rising consciousness of the students that utterances in English as a foreign language could lead to misinterpretation factors such as us idiomatic expressions and cultural norms are not functioning as appropriately the they use determine the attending meaning. Both of these studies have similarities, another similarity lies in the research method. This is because both of these studies use qualitative methods. The research sample is the students of SMP PGRI 5 Denpasar. While this research has a sample of the eleventh grade at SMAN 1 Punggur.

In conducting this research, the researcher considers the prior research of previous research to take the theoretical and applicative benefits of the research. The first previous research was written by Widiastuti with the research title Pragmatic research of illocutionary acts analysis in discussion activities for students learning speaking, the research method used by this research was descriptive qualitative. The research objective was The research aims to know the types and functions of illocutionary acts that appear in discussion activities on speaking learning of the 3rd semester of the ATI Makassar Polytechnic.

Both of these studies have similarities, another similarity lies in the research method. This is because both of these studies use qualitative methods. The research sample is the 3rd semester of the students of Polytechnic ATI Makassar. While this research has a sample of the eleventh graders of SMAN 1 Punggur.

The next relevant research was carried out by Latifah Tri Budiasih, Andayani, Muhammad Rohmadi with the research title "Illocution on Illocutionary acts of Foreign Students in Indonesian Learning"³. The purpose of this study was to find out the Illocution on Illocutionary acts of Foreign Students in Indonesian Learning, this study used a qualitative method and the results showed that there are three data of Assertive in the form of complaining, confirming, something, and expressing opinions. Two directive illocution data are asking and pleading. Declarative illocution is not found in their study. In other words the act of Illocutionary acts of the illocution of foreign students is most often found in the act of assertive is complaining, affirmation, and opinion.

CHAPTER II

LITERATURE REVIEWS

A. The Concept of Speaking Skills

1. The Definition of Speaking Skills

Speaking skill is a multilevel, hierarchical skill, in which high level plans, in the form of speaker intentions, are realized through the process of formulation and articulation. Speaking skill is likely to induce anxiety reactions, especially in the learning situation⁴. Speaking skill is the ability to communicate effectively with English to communicate information verbally and in a way that the listener can understand.

Speaking is a foreign language is a very complex skill, including vocabulary, grammar, pronunciation, fluency, the ability to structure speech or even non-verbal abilities⁵. Speaking is the same as oral interaction which are conventional ways of speaking information, expressing our ideas and thoughts in our minds.

Speaking is much more complex than this and that involves both a command of certain skills and several different types of knowledge.⁶ Speaking is a productive speaking skill which when we speak we produce the text and have meaning.

Speaking is a crucial part of second language learning and teaching. It is an art of communication and one of four productive skills that must be mastered in learning foreign languages.⁷ Beside that, Scott Thornbury states that speaking is so much a part of daily life that we take it for granted. Speaking is the ability to speak in expressing an idea orally, or it can also be called an act of communication through speaking in an interaction, more precisely verbal interaction.

2. The Function of Speaking

a. Talk as Interactions

Talk as interactions refer to what we mean by conversation and describe interactions that serve primarily a social function, when people meet, they do greetings, small talk, recount recent experiences and other things that make it comfortable when interacting with others.

If focuses on the speakers and how they present themselves to each other.

b. Talk as Transactions

Talk as transaction refers to a situation where the focus is on what is said or done. Talk as a transaction focus on the information of the message. The message and making oneself understood clearly and accurately is the central focus, rather than the participant.

c. Talk as Performance

This refers to public talks. Here, the speaker transfers the information to the audience, such as classroom presentations, public announcements and speeches. It tends to be in the form of monologue rather than dialogue.

B. The Concept of Illocution Speech

1. The Definition of Illocution Speech

A illocutionary acts is an action that speakers perform by speaking: offering thanks, greetings, invitations, making requests, giving orders, etc.⁸. Illocutionary acts is a conversation or communication that has a certain meaning in which the form of delivery is in the form of topic, mandate, context, and the context of the mandate. Illocutionary acts is an action, speech, or utterance to convey or express a word or sentence that is in accordance with the meaning contained in the result of social interaction.

The term illocutionary acts refers to what is done when something is said (eg requesting, stating, declaring, warning, threatening etc.). Utterances may thus be viewed as performing specific actions as well as providing a particular 'meaning'⁹. The illocutionary acts includes illocutionary acts in the form of requests, refusals, invitations, and so on. When communicating, one must focus on what is being said so that the speaker and the addressee can understand each other.

⁸Paul R. Kroeger, Analyzing meaning. 2018. An introduction to semantics and pragmatics (textbooks in Language Sciences 5). Berlin Language Science Press. 179

Illocutionary acts require intention to the content of speech¹⁰. The term illocutionary acts refers to what is done when the speaker is saying something, when the speaker is saying a command sentence. For example: "please get me a drink". From the command sentence, the imperative form has the intention that the listener responds in the form of an action or deed with what the speaker is asking for.

Illocutionary acts is taken as a generic term for any sort of language use, oral or otherwise. Illocutionary acts, whatever the medium of their articulation, fall under the broad category of intentional acts, and hence are part of the theory of action.¹¹ Illocutionary acts theory begins with the assumption of communication of several types of actions such as questions, statements, describing or others.

¹⁰Stephen J. Barker, Renewing The Meaning Of A Speech-Act Theoretic Approach, 2004,19

¹¹Phyllis Kaburise, Speech Act Theory and Communication: A Univen Research, 2011, 69

2. Type of Illocution Speech

There are five types of illocutionary acts that receive special attention, as follows:

- a. Assertive speech is a illocutionary acts that binds the speaker to the truth of what is said, with the aim of saying. For example say/state, report, mention.
- b. Commissive illocutionary acts is a illocutionary acts conveyed by the speaker to convince the speech partner. For example: promises, pledges, threats, vows.
- c. Directive illocutionary acts is a type of illocutionary acts used by speakers to tell other people to do something. for example: commands, requests, challenges, invitations, entreaties, dares.
- d. Declarations illocutionary acts is a illocutionary acts carried out by the speaker with the intention of creating new things (status, circumstances, and so on). For example: deciding, canceling, apologizing, declaring mysteries.
- e. Expressive illocutionary acts is a illocutionary acts that involves feelings and attitudes. For example: greetings, apologies, congratulations, condolences, thanks givings.

Some of the illocutionary acts include representative illocutionary acts, commissives, directives, declarations, expressives, and verifications. Representative is a illocutionary acts in which the speaker tells the truth about what he says. For example: "father can always be relied on".

Commissive is a illocutionary acts in which the speaker performs everything stated in his utterance, for example promising, swearing, threatening. For example, "I am able to carry out the duties of the father". Declarative is a illocutionary acts where the speaker intends to create something new, what is meant by this speech is speech with the intention of deciding, canceling, forbidding, forgiving. for example: "grandmother doesn't come here".

Expressive is a illocutionary acts intended for the speaker so that his speech is interpreted as an evaluation including saying thank you, congratulations, criticizing, blaming. For example: "Your clothes are very nice"

3. Characteristics of Illocution Speech

- a. Indirect illocutionary acts violates at least one maxim of the cooperative principle.
- b. The literal meaning of the locution of an indirect illocutionary acts differs from its intended meaning.
- c. Hearers and readers identify indirect illocutionary acts by noticing that an utterance has characteristic (it violates a maxim) and by assuming that the interlocutor is following the cooperative principle.

- d. As soon as hearers and readers have identified an indirect illocutionary acts, they identify its intended meaning with the help of knowledge of the context and of the world.¹²

4. Components of Illocution Speech

Every illocutionary acts has several components, two of which directly concern us here: the utterance itself and the intention of the speaker in making it.

- a. First, every utterance is represented by a sentence with a grammatical structure and a linguistic meaning; this is the locution.
- b. Second, the speakers who had the intention of making speech and what they wanted to accomplish were called illocution.
- c. A third component of a illocutionary acts -one we are not discuss at length-is the effect of the act on the hearer; this is the perlocution, or the "uptake."¹³

In a illocutionary acts component that is of concern is the way of pronunciation and intonation of the speaker, that each intonation of the speaker that each utterance has its own particular relevance. If the speakers do not know the context, grammatical, appropriate intonation structure, they do also not know the meaning of the utterance conveyed.

CHAPTER III

RESEARCH METHOD

A. The Types and Characteristics of Research

A qualitative research may for example share data recordings and transcripts in what is often referred to as a data session, which is a group-based analysis gathering where multiple analysts provide their own perspectives to the transcript or phenomena under investigation¹⁴. Qualitative research is used to examine scientific objects. This research starts from field data and uses existing theories as support.

The definition of qualitative is also a descriptive research method, the data collected is in the form of words or pictures, therefore it does not emphasize a number. This research is classified as a case study research because to find out the use of illocutionary acts in speaking skills the researcher visited SMAN 1 Punggur to find out this phenomenon.

The case research is a research of some phenomenon broader than the unit under investigation.¹⁵ A case research is a process of investigation or examination, in depth and detail on a particular or special event that is currently or has occurred. Another opinion regarding the case research is a research strategy, which investigates a phenomenon in a real-life setting. In case research research, both qualitative and quantitative evidence can be used.

¹⁴Uwe flick, The SAGE Handbook of Qualitative Data Collection, 122

The characteristic in this research focuses on the descriptive qualitative research. Descriptive Qualitative research take context and cases seriously for understanding an issue under research. A bigger part of the current qualitative research is based on case studies or a series of case studies, and often the case (its history and complexity) is an important context for understanding the issue that is being studied.¹⁶ In the characteristics of this research, it focuses on qualitative descriptive, the objective of research using qualitative descriptive is to describe or explain and answer in detail about the research being conducted. In this type of qualitative descriptive research, it requires a description or description of the phenomenon under investigation.

In line with the explanation above, the objective of this research to know the use of Illocutionary Speech in speaking skills at SMAN 1 Punggur.

B. Data Sources

In this research the researcher divides the sources into two items. They are primary and secondary sources.

¹⁶Uweflictk, The SAGE Handbook of Qualitative Data Collection, 6

1. Primary Sources

Primary sources are original accounts on which exploration is grounded. They are evidence or direct substantiation concerning a content under consideration. The primary sources of presenting information in its original form are not interpreted or evaluated by other researchers. The main sources of this research are ten archives of student assignments in the form of recordings of the students' speaking skills in the form of dialogue, which were carried out by the eighth grade students at SMAN 1 Punggur.

2. Secondary Sources

Secondary source offers interpretation or analysis based on primary sources. They may explain primary sources and often use them to support a specific thesis or argument or to persuade the reader to accept a certain point of view. The secondary source in this research is from the research setting documentation, journals, e-books and articles that are related to the research.

C. Data Collection Techniques

Two key issues in selecting and using data collection methods are the relationship between your research questions and data collection methods, and the joint use of different methods, often termed 'triangulation.¹⁷ The data collection is a procedure of accumulating and making sure records on variables of interest, in a scientific manner that lets in one to reply to questions of assessments done, hypothetical assessments, and check of results. The researcher used documents to collect the data. The researcher took documents from ten archives of student assignments in the form of speaking skills done by the eleventh grade at SMAN 1 Punggur.

¹⁷Uweflictk, The SAGE Handbook of Qualitative Data Collection, 27

In this research, the researcher uses three techniques to collect the data. There are observations, interview, and documentation.

1. Observation

Observation the process of gathering open-ended, firsthand information by observing people and places at a research site. In this research, the researcher collected data in the form of ten recordings of student dialogue in English by asking for an assignment archive from the English teacher. The data was observed by the researcher to get answers from the research objectives.

2. Interview

An interview is a meeting between two people where they share information or ideas through questions and responses and can be summarized to conclusions or meaning in a particular issue. An interview is usually a live conversation between a researcher and a participant that involves an exchange of information to the interviewer. The interview aims to record the opinions, feelings, emotions and other matters that relate to the individuals within the organization. By conducting interviews, the researcher can gain more data so that the researcher can search through the language and expressions of those interviewed and clarify the unknown. The researcher used as free interview manuals because to avoid discussions that stray from the problems that should be studied. Questions to be asked are prepared in advance, directed on the topic to be done, for interview. In this case, the researcher would ask questions about the student's speaking.

3. Documentation

Documentation is one of many processes accompanying audit work, and its main objective is lay out in writing all activities and facts relating to an adult. The instruments which were used for documentation of the Technique are books, magazines, notes, data from the internet, journals and others. The researches uses the documentation technique to get some information about:

- a. The history of SMAN 1 Punggur.
- b. The condition of teachers and officials employees in SMAN 1 Punggur.
- c. Building Conditions and School Facilities.
- d. The quantity of the students of SMAN 1 Punggur.
- e. Organizational structure of SMAN 1 Punggur.

D. Data Analysis Techniques

The important part in research research is analyzing data. Data analysis is an important step in obtaining research results, because the result becomes a conclusion from all of the research. Analysis of knowledge means researching the tabulated material so as to work out character facts or meanings. It involves breaking down existing complex factors into simple parts and putting the parts together in new arrangements for the objective of interpretation.

The researcher applied the Miles and Huberman model to analyze the data. The components of this analysis model are illustrated by this figure.

Data analysis by Miles and Huberman model conducts the following steps:

- 1) Data collection was the step when the researcher gathered all data used to complete the research.

- 2) The researcher reduced the data gotten by summarizing and choosing specific things.
- 3) To display the data, the researcher usually used graphics, figures or charts. The display was able to describe the content throughout the data.
- 4) Finally, the researcher verified his research by making a conclusion of the data findings.

Therefore, it is concluded that the analysis of data has some functions in analyzing research data that includes in; to make the full meaning of the data, to test null hypotheses, to get the significant results, to describe inferences or to make generalizations, and to calculate parameters.

In this research, the researcher collected data in the form of ten recordings of student dialogue in English by asking for an assignment file from the English teacher and conducting interviews with teachers and students to complete the research data. After that, the researcher sorted the data by concentrating on the research objectives using research instruments in the form of observation sheets, interview sheets and documentation sheets. with the use of tables. After that, the researcher concluded the results of the research related to the use of illocutionary acts in student action to answer the research objectives.

CHAPTER IV

RESULTS OF THE RESEARCH AND DISCUSSION

A. Result Of The Research

1. Profile of SMAN 1 Punggur

a.The Historical Background of SMA N 1 Punggur

SMAN 1 Punggur is one of the high schools in Nunggalrejo, Punggur, Central Lampung. SMA Negeri 1 Punggur began to accept new students based on the head of the Education Department and the head of tourism, Art and Culture department's decision of Lampung Tengah Regency, number: 420/003/05/D.8/2003 in March 17 , 2003 Thus, the learning-teaching activity of SMA Negeri 1 Punggur was begun in the academic year 2003/2004.

In its first existence, the management and development of SMA Negeri 1 Punggur was implemented by the Head of SMA Negeri 1 Kotagajah (Drs. Syatbi Tahmid, MM) because SMA Negeri 1 Punggur had no teachers and staff yet. Therefore, the Head of SMA Negeri 1 Kotagajah assigned the Vice Head of SMA Negeri 1 41 Kotagajah (Drs. Sontang Simanjuntak) to manage SMA Negeri 1 Punggur.

b. The vision and mission of SMAN 1 Punggur

1) Visions

God-fearing, educated, and virtuous. Indicators:

- a) Excellent in belief and God-fearing.

- b) Excellent in knowledge and technology mastery.
- c) Excellent in attainment of final examination score.
- d) Being able to compete in the selection of new students in college.
- e) Active in teen science work activity.
- f) Perceptive.
- g) Excellent in sports performance.

2) Missions

- a) Molding the students who have fearing against God.
- b) Creating the innovative, fun and creative learning activity.
- c) Molding the students who have knowledge and skills.
- d) Preparing for the students to go on to the next level of education.
- e) Developing attitude and personality which have the well-mannered, good ethics and high aesthetics.

2. The Description of Research Results

The description of this research reviews the results of research to answer the achievement of the research objective to describe the use of Illocutionary Speech by the students of the eleventh grade at SMAN 1 Punggur; and to analyze the most dominant type of Illocutionary Speech by the students of the eleventh grade at SMAN 1 Punggur.

a. The Use Of Illocutionary acts In Speaking Skills Of The Eleventh Grade At SMAN 1 Punggur

In collecting data related to the use of illocutionary acts on speaking skills the students examined 14 English conversations conducted by the eleventh graders of SMAN 1 Punggur. The explanation regarding the use of illocutionary acts in speaking skill is explained in the following explanation:

1) The Appropriate Use of Illocutionary acts in Speaking Skills

Based on the results of the research, the researcher found that there was an appropriate use of illocutionary acts in the assertive, directive, and expressive types. There are 18 appropriate uses of assertives, 1 appropriate use of directives, and 14 appropriate expressive uses. Therefore, a total of 33 appropriate illocutionary acts uses are appropriate.

a) Assertive

Based on the results of observations of 14 conversations in English conducted by 28 students, the researchers found that there were 18 uses of appropriate illocutionary acts in the assertive type. Conversational data showing the use of the assertive type is shown in the following conversation script:

Whats your name?

My name is Azizah Arum

In this conversation the correct use of assertive is shown in the sentence My name is Azizah Arum. This is because the students are able to respond to questions about extracting name information correctly by conveying the fact that her name is Azizah Arum.

where are you going?

I want to go to market

In this conversation, the use of the appropriate type of assertiveness is shown in the sentence I want to go to the market. This is because students are able to respond to questions about extracting interrogative sentences correctly by conveying the fact that they want to go to the market.

b) Directives

Based on the results of observations of 14 conversations in English conducted by 28 students, the researchers found that there was an appropriate use of illocutionary acts in the Directive type of 1 usage. The conversation data that shows the use of the Directive type is shown in the following conversation script:

In this conversation, the use of the appropriate type of assertiveness is shown in the sentence I want to go to the market. This is because students are able to respond to questions about extracting interrogative sentences correctly by conveying the fact that they want to go to the market.

c) Expressive

Based on the results of observations of 14 conversations in English conducted by 28 students, the researcher found that there were 14 uses of appropriate illocutionary acts in the Expressive type. The conversation data that shows the use of the Directive type is shown in the following conversation script::

nice to meet you Dita

nice to meet you too Arum

In this conversation the use of the right expressive type is shown in the nice to meet you too Arum sentence. This is because the students are able to respond to the correct parting sentences by conveying the fact that they want to also express the parting sentences.

Hello zazcia

Hello dina

In this conversation the use of the correct expressive type is shown in the sentence string hello Dina. This is because the students are able to respond to the greeting sentence appropriately by conveying the fact that they want to also express the greeting sentence with the other person.

2) The Inappropriate Use of Illocutionary acts in Speaking Skills

Based on the results of the research, the researcher found that there were 2 inappropriate uses of illocutionary acts. The inappropriate use consists of 1 inappropriate use of a illocutionary acts in the Directive type, and 1 inappropriate use in the Expressive type. The research data shows the inaccuracy of illocutionary acts on the students' speaking skills is shown in the following data

a) Directive

Based on the results of observations of student conversations, it is known that the researcher found 1 inappropriate use of the Directive type. The research data that shows these inaccuracies include:

Kurnia : hey I just want to let you know that you are invited to nurul's wedding.

Diandra : Why did I think she was married to John?

Inappropriate use of illocutionary acts in the Directive type is shown in the usage of sentences Why what I thought she was married to john?

This is classified as inappropriate use because the answer from Diandra is not correct with the wedding invitation conveyed by Kurnia. The thread of the conversation should have been expressed in the following way: Ok, thank you for the information, I will definitely come to Nurul's wedding.

b) Expressive

Based on the results of observations of student conversation, it is known that the researcher found 1 inappropriate use of the Expressive type. The research data that shows these inaccuracies include:

Kamasaka : Be good better tell our teacher that we are coming late because of the traffic I hope we will not miss the first lesson

Johannes: Let's call it

Inappropriate use of illocutionary acts in the Directive type is shown in the sentence *lets call it*this usage is classified as inappropriate use because John's answer is not right with an idea conveyed by Kamasaka. The thread of the conversation should be expressed in a way: That's a good idea Kamasaka, let's try it.

Table 5
The Use of Illocution Speech in Speaking Skill

No	Types of Illocutionary acts	Appropriate	Inappropriate
1.	Assertive	18%
2.	Directives	1%	1%
3.	Expressive	14%	1%
	Total	33%	2%

b. The most dominant of Illocutionary Speech by the students of the eleventh grade at SMAN 1 Punggur

In collecting data related to illocutionary acts in the students' speaking skill the researcher collected archives of conversations in English for the eleventh graders of SMAN 1 Punggur. The number of students who carried out the conversation was 28 students so there were 14 recorded conversations. After collecting data in the form of recordings of student conversations in English, the researcher reduced the data by observing the conversation script by writing the conversation script. After that, the researcher reduced the script data of the conversation by classifying it according to the type of illocutionary acts . From the results of sorting the data it is known that there were 35 illocutionary acts in student conversations. The explanation of each type of illocutionary acts is explained in the following description:

1) Assertive

Based on 14 conversations in English conducted by the eleventh graders, it is known that there were 18 illocutionary acts of the Assertive type. The conversation data that shows the Assertive type is described below:

a) Conversation conducted by Arum and Dita

Based on the results of observations on the conversation conducted by Dita and Arum, it was found that there was an Assertive type which was shown in the following conversation script:

Dita: what is your name?

Arum: my name is Azizah Arum

The conversation is classified as assertive because there is a process for conveying information related to the speaker's name. This can be seen from Arum's efforts to inform Dita that her name is Arum after being asked the question "What's your name".

b) Conversation conducted by Okta and Citra

Based on the results of observations on conversations conducted by Okta and Citra, it was found that there was an Assertive type which was shown in the following conversation script:

Okta : What do you think of my dress? Do you like?

image :Ok well yes but it will be more elegant if you wear a long black dress.

The conversation belongs to the assertive type because there is a process for conveying information related to the clothes Okta is wearing. This can be seen from Citra's efforts to inform Okta about the dress Okta is wearing by asking "what do you think of my dress? Do you like?".

c) Conversation conducted by Cesil and Veronica

Based on the results of observations on conversations conducted by Cesil and Veronica, it was found that there was an Assertive type which was shown in the following conversation script:

Vero : can you give me an opinion about my sculpture?

Cecil :Sure I think you should have had fixed the hand

The conversation belongs to the assertive type because there is a process for conveying information related to the speaker's suggestions. This can be seen from Cesil's efforts to inform Vero about the sculpture he made by asking the question "can you give me an opinion about my sculpture?"

2) Directives

Based on 14 conversations in English conducted by the eleventh graders, it is known that there were 2 illocutionary acts of the

Directive type. The conversation data that shows the type of Directive is described as follows:

a) Conversation conducted by Arum and Dita

Based on the results of observations on the conversation conducted by Arum and Dita, it was found that there was a Directive type shown in the following conversation script:

Ditta : I want to go to market

Arum : Be careful on the road

The conversation belongs to the Directive type because there is a process for ordering something related to the speaker's suggestion. This can be seen from Arum's efforts to instruct Dita by giving the order "Be careful on the road".

b) Conversation conducted by Kurnia and Diandra

Based on the results of observations on the conversation conducted by Kurnia&Diandra, it was found that there was a Directive type shown in the following conversation script:

Kurnia : I'm great, hey I just want to let you know that you are invited to Nurul's wedding.

Diandra : why, what I thought she was married to join.

The conversation belongs to the Directive type because there is a process to invite something related to the speaker's invitation.

This can be seen from Kurnia's efforts to invite Diandra by giving an invitation "hey, I just wanted to let you know that you are invited to Nurul's wedding."

3) Expressive

Based on 14 conversations in English conducted by the eleventh graders, it is known that there were 15 illocutionary acts of the Expressive type. The conversation data that shows the Expressive type is described as follows:

a) Conversation conducted by Zazcia and Dina

Based on the results of observations on the conversation conducted by Zazcia and Dina, it was found that there was an Expressive type which was shown in the following conversation script:

Dina : can I borrow a newspaper?

Zazcia : im sorry din the newspaper is being read by my father

The conversation belongs to the Expressive type because there is a process for apologizing for something related to the speaker's question. This can be seen from Zazcia's attempt to apologize to Dina by giving the sentence "im sorry din the newspaper is being read by my father".

b) Conversation conducted by Kurnia and Diandra

Based on the results of observations on conversations conducted by Kurnia and Diandra, it was found that there was an Expressive type which was shown in the following conversation script:

Kurnia : hi diandra how are you?

Diandra : I'm good how about you?

The conversation belongs to the Expressive type because there is a process of greeting and asking news related to the speaker's question. This can be seen from Kurnia's efforts to greet Diandra with the sentence "hi petter how are you?".

c) Conversation conducted by Okta and Citra

Based on the results of observations on conversations conducted by Kurnia and Diandra, it was found that there was an Expressive type which was shown in the following conversation script:

Okta : hello Citra

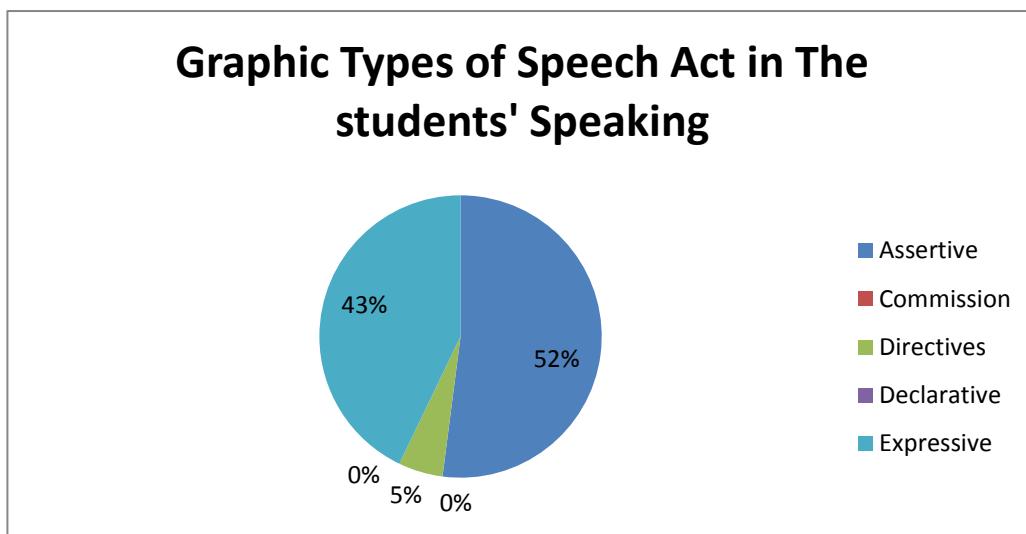

Citra : hello Okta

The conversation belongs to the Expressive type because there is a process of greeting a dialogue related to the speaker's question. This can be seen from Okta's attempt to greet Citra with the sentence "hello Octa."

5.	Expressive	15	42%

Based on the illustration, it is known that there are only 3 types of illocutionary acts on students' speaking skills, namely Assertive type as much as 18 or 51%, Directive type as much as 2 or 5% and Expressive type as much as 15 or 42%. This shows that the types that often appear are Assertive and Expressive types. In other words, the Directive type is rarely used, while the Declarative and Commission types are not used by students in speaking skills.

B. Discussions

The discussion of this research is related to the explanation of the research results. The first result is related to the use of Illocutionary Speech by the students of the eleventh grade at SMAN 1 Punggur. The use is focused on appropriate and inappropriate use. From the research results it is known that the use of the right illocutionary acts consists of 18 (51%) uses of the right type of Assertive, 1(5%) use of the right type of Directive, and 14 (42%) uses of the right type of Expressive. In other words, there are 33% appropriate illocutionary acts uses. In addition, based on the research results, it is known that there is 1 (5%) inappropriate use of the Directive type, and 1 (5%) inappropriate use of the Expressive type. In other words, it is known that there are 2 inappropriate uses of illocutionary acts. Based on this explanation, it can be concluded that the use of illocutionary acts on the students' speaking skill is dominated by the use of appropriate illocutionary acts.

The second result is about the most dominant type of illocutionary act. Based on the results of observations of 14 conversations conducted by 28 students, it was found that there were 18 (51%) uses of the Assertive type, 2 (5%) used the Directive type, and 15 (42%) used the Expressive type. In other words, it was found that there were 51% or 18 use of the Assertive type, 5% or 2 use of the Directive type, and 42% or 15 use of the Expressive type. This shows that the use of illocutionary acts in the Assertive type dominates the use of other illocutionary acts types. This was because there were 51% Assertive illocutionary acts in the student's conversation.

This research results are related to this research is relevant to several previous studies, because the results of research conducted by NLE Subagiasih, pk Nitiasih, IG Budisari show that the students also use illocutionary acts in the speaking process with the dominant type of Commissionive¹⁸. The use of illocutionary acts on the students' speaking skill shows that students as language learners, especially those related to speaking skills, have tried to use statements in accordance with the conversation, namely those related to Assertive, Commissive, Directive, Declarative, and Expressive .

This research is also closely related to the results of Agus Hidayat's research because the results of his research show that the students also use illocutionary acts in the speaking process to achieve communication goals.

CHAPTER V

CONLUSION AND SUGGESTION

A. Conclusion

The conclusion of this research refers to the explanation of the research results. The results of the research about the the use of Illocutionary Speech by the students of the eleventh grade at SMAN 1 Punggur Based on the results of observations it was fond that there were 18 or 51% use of the Assertive type, 2 or 5% of the Directive type, and 15 or 42% of the Expressive type. Therefore it is concluded that the most dominant the use of Illocutionary Speech by the students of the eleventh grade at SMAN 1 Punggur is of the Assertive type.

The first result is related to the the use of Illocutionary Speech by the students of the eleventh grade at SMAN 1 Punggur. The use of the right illocutionary acts consists of 18 (51%) uses of the right type of Assertive, 1 (5%) use of the right type of Directive, and 14 (42%) uses of the right type of Expressive. In the other words, there are 33% appropriate illocutionary acts uses. In addition, based on the research results, it is known that there is 1 (5%) inappropriate use of the Directive type, and 1 (5%) inappropriate use of the Expressive type. In other words, it is known that there are 2 (5%) inappropriate uses of illocutionary acts. Based on this explanation, it can be concluded that the use of illocutionary acts on the students' speaking skill is dominated by the use of appropriate illocutionary acts.

The second result is about the most dominant type of illocutionary act. Based on the results of observations of 14 conversations conducted by 28 students, it was found that there were 18 (51%) uses of the Assertive type, 2 (5%) used the Directive type, and 15 (42%) used the Expressive type. In other words, it was found that there were 51% or 18 use of the Assertive type, 5% or 2 use the Directive type, and 42% or 15 use the Expressive type. This shows that the use of illocutionary acts in the Assertive type dominates the use of other illocutionary acts types. This was because there were 51% or 18 Assertive illocutionary acts in the student's conversation.

B. Suggestion

The researcher provides suggestions for the students, teachers, and school principals which are explained in the following elaboration.

1. For the students

It is suggested for the students to further develop their English speaking skills by increasing the intensity of speaking practice. In addition, students can develop topics of conversation with more varied theme content so that more illocutionary acts content is used. By using illocutionary acts in the speaking process, the conversation process will be more varied to convey communication goals.

2. For the teachers

It is suggested for teachers to motivate students more in the process of speaking English by giving assignments and opportunities for students to speak English. In addition, the teacher can give speaking practice assignments that contain a wide selection of speaking topics so that the illocutionary acts content can be applied in the speaking process by the students so that the students can speak according to the right communication goals.

3. For the headmaster

To school principals to support the process of learning English especially those related to speaking skills by not only providing support for infrastructure and learning strategy training but also providing the creation of an environment that implements the application of speaking English actively, especially in English lessons.
