CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

A. Background of Study

English is an international language that has an important role in part of human life. English is the official language that is used in many countries for communication. A good mastery of English contributes positively to the effectiveness in the communication of either oral or written. English is very important in a part of human life because English has several benefits. The benefits of mastering English is not only to increase knowledge but also to make people easier to communicate with others. English is a foreign language that should be taught both in formal and informal institutions in Indonesia. Moreover, English covers language skills. One of them is writing. Writing is expressing and organizing statements to the reader.¹Therefore, writing is a process of transferring information using letters to the reader.

Furthermore, writing skill in English has many benefits. The benefits of writing are to express not only the ideas but also feelings. Moreover, the benefits of writing are for maintaining grammatical mastery, for improving vocabulary. In addition, the benefit of writing is as tool for developing an understanding of and ability to use the language.

However, writing is not language skill that easy to mastery. The students have many problems in the process of writing an English text. The problems of writing is caused by linguistic and nonlinguistic aspects. Writing problems caused by low contribution of linguistic aspects include of the limitations of English vocabulary, the low grammar mastery, the difficulty in developing writing ideas, and the inability to apply the concept of writing mechanism. Meanwhile writing problems caused by low contribution of non-linguistic aspects include of the disobedience in the selection of learning media and the teaching methods, low environmental support, low motivation to write, low writing habits and lack of attention in writing an English text.

The phenomenon in writing need to investigate to reveal the reality. One of the phenomenon is code mixing. Code-mixing is mix two languages in one utterance.² Because of code-mixing in writing, the writing quality is not linguistically correct.

Furthermore, the researcher had also conducted a pre-survey to find out the writing problem got by students of IAIN Metro. The pre-survey was conducted on November 19th, 2019. The data of pre-survey was taken from Instagram. In the process of pre-survey, the researcher found 10 data of Students' English writing at IAIN Metro in English Education Department on instagram.

Based on the result of presurvey, it was found that the phenomenon of code mixing in the students' writing on insatgram, as follow:

“Cozy banget tempatnya”

“Perfect kemiripan hidungnya”

“Karya lama versi new”

²Marzena Watorek, Sandra Benazzo, and Maya Hickmann, Comparative Perspectives on Language Acquisition (UK: Multilingual Matters, 2012), 263.

Based on the students' writing on Instagram found the phenomenon of outer code mixing that the students mix English and Indonesian. Based on the first students' writing on Instagram shows that the students mix English word cozy in Indonesian sentence. Furthermore, based on the second students' writing on Instagram shows that the students mix English word perfect in Indonesian sentence. In addition, based on the third students' writing on Instagram shows that the students mix English word new in Indonesian sentence. It means that the students' English writing is mixed dominantly by the Indonesian language. Therefore, the students' writing is not dominated by full English sentences.

Furthermore, the researcher intends to reveal the phenomenon of outer code mixing on the students' instagram of IAIN Metro to achieve it, the researcher conducted qualitative research in the form of case study that was conducted in the 10 students. Therefore, the researcher composed an undergraduate thesis entitled "An Analysis of Outer Code Mixing on instagram Posted by English Education Department Student at State Institute for Islamic Studies of Metro".

B. Research Question

The research question include of:

The result of the first prior research showed that English is frequently used by students in social media to perform code-mixing which are present in caption, status, hashtag, and comments.

The first prior research and this research have similarities and differences. The similarity of research topic is related to the use of code mixing on online written discourse. Furthermore, the similarity of research method is qualitative research method. The difference lies in the research sample. This research focuses on insatgram data of English Education Department student at IAIN Metro on Instagram. Whereas the sample of the first prior research IS 8th and 9th graders at a junior high school in Tangerang.

In addition, the second prior research had been conducted by Mónica Stella Cárdenas-Claros and Neny Isharyanti entitled “Code switching and code mixing in Internet chatting: between ‘yes’, ‘ya’, and ‘si’ a case study”.⁴ The objective of the second prior research is to analyze analyzed to identify frequency of code switching and code mixing for both cultures, topics that triggered code switching and code mixing in each culture, and topics common to both cultures and topics less likely to occur within both cultures. The

CHAPTER II

THEORETICAL REVIEW

A. The Concept of Instagram

1. The Definition of Instagram

Instagram is an evolving social network that permits users to take personal experiences such as photos or video from the mobile phone to share with the Instagram community⁶ Moreover, instagram is a type of social media. The users allow to take a photos or videos. Therefore, the function of instagram is to share photos and videos.

Furthermore, Instagram is a social media platform that runs on mobile phones and tablets.⁷ Therefore, Instagram is mobile application, so people must be using a smartphone or tablet to access it. Instagram is one of the kinds of platforms as a tool to share people`s video and photo ⁸ Moreover, instagram is application and social networking platform to share photos and videos.

2. The Function of Instagram

According to Krista Neher people use Instagram because:⁹

a. Photo editing options

Instagram has many unique templates to edit photos in such easy way. The photo edited by Instagram have high quality which can make the photos look way better than the real photos. It can be inferred that the process of editing in Instagram does not spend time, the result of editing looks alike as a professional photographer.

b. To participate in the Instagram community

There are a lot of photography community in Instagram. Thus, the user of Instagram who is interested in photography can join these community to improve their skill in photography.

c. To sharing photos on Instagram to other social networks.

Instagram can be integrated to the other platforms making the users can share the photo or videos in the same times. Furthermore, the online written discourse can be functions as a source of information, but this platform also can be used widely for interactive purposes, for instance social networking and e-commerce.¹⁰ In other words, the function of online written discourse is to share knowledges that educate the audiences about a particular topic for examples, news, tips and tricks, tutorials, announcements and so on. Now, people can get information wherever and whenever. It can save time and money. Besides, it is used to communicate with other people easily and it also can be used as a media commerce to sell products or services to the costumers.

¹⁰*Ibid.*, 33

B. The Concept of Outer Code Mixing

1. The Types of Code Mixing

There are two types of code mixing:¹¹

a. Inner Code Mixing

Inner code mixing is the kinds of mixing language from the native language with all its variation such as local languages, dialects and the others. That means, the people inserts the part of local language into national language, the part of dialect into the national language, or part of style or varieties into the dialect. For Example:

“Teteh, apa kabar?”.

The example above shows the speaker uses Indonesian language and insert a word, teteh which means sister.

b. Outer Code Mixing

Outer code mixing is a process mixing from foreign language. It means, the people mix language from native (national) language and foreign language. For example:

“Kamu udah dengerin Podcast dari bu Leni belum?”

This example, the person uses national language (Indonesian language) and insert word podcast which is the vocabulary in English.

According to Musyken, there are three forms of outer code mixing:¹²

- 1) Insertion of material which can be lexical items or entire constituents from a particular language (native language) into the structure from the other language. It means that insertion is insert a word in the conversation both in form of oral or written.

The example of insertion is as followed:

“Tolong follow social mediaku sih”.

(Please follow my social media).

Based on the example, word follow is an English word that inserted in the Indonesian expression.

- 2) Alternation between structures from languages. Alternation happens when the structures of two languages are exchanged indistinctively both at the grammatical and lexical level. The example:

“Vin, tempat nge-print ini tuh mahal banget loh.”

(Vin, this printing place is really expensive).

From this example there is word nge-print the structure of both languages is exchanged equivalently.

- 3) Congruent Lexicalization of material who came from different lexical into a shared grammatical structure. The study of style shifting and dialect/standard variation. It means that the words of expression which come out from people sound like foreign language. For example, Indonesia official language has some dialect with English word. The example:

“Maaf ya Nis, bisa diam enggak gua jadi gak fokus!”

(Sorry Nis, I did not focus please be quiet!).

Based on the example indicates that congruent lexicalization appears in the sentence such as in word fokus.

2. The Definition of Outer Code Mixing

Bilingual users communicate with each other through social media, this users typically mix the languages either the elements or the structures from two languages.¹³ Therefore, bilingual is the ability to use two languages in communication. The speaker uses elements or structure from the native language. The speaker mixes one language to another language to communicate.

In addition, code mixing refers to the intra sentential exchanging use of two or more languages or language varieties and is often used in field of grammatical features of bilingual speech.¹⁴ Code mixing is using two or even more languages in the studies of grammatical feature of bilingual speech. Furthermore, Code-mixing is the usage of components from the two languages in an utterance (intra-utterance mixing) or between utterances (inter-utterance mixing).¹⁵ Based on definition above, code mixing is mix two or more language to another language. Furthermore, Outer code mixing mix code from the foreign languages.¹⁶ It means, people mixing language from foreign language with native language.

3. The Reason of People Use Outer Code Mixing

There are some reasons people to mix or switch the languages as follow:¹⁷

a. Talking about a particular topic

People often have a preference to talk about a specific topic in a particular language rather than in another language. Sometimes, people would sense free and very comfortable to reveal the emotional or feelings in a particular language that actually is not these people daily language. This case can be seen in many online written discourse such as Instagram, facebook, and whatsapp, in which people mix Indonesian language and English that is used to reveal the emotional or feeling within people mind. This is the example of code mixing talking about a particular topic:

“Literally, aku tidak sampai hati untuk makan dessert ini which it is very beautiful.”

(Literally, it is a pity to eat this dessert because it is very beautiful)

b. Quoting somebody else

People shift or even mixcode to quote a famous expression, proverb, or saying from somewell-known figures. The switch and mixing contains only the words that the people quoted person said. In fact, people in Indonesia are used to speak in English and often quote expressions or sayings from public figures to mix with the native language. The example of famous expression are as follow:

A: Saya tidak sukasama orang itu, penampilannya aneh.

(I do not like him, he looks strange.)

B: Don't judge book by its cover.

In this conversation, B answers the question from A with the famous proverb "Don't judge book by its cover."

c. Being emphatic about something (express solidarity)

People use or mix other language, because people wants to be emphatic about something. This are the example of being emphatic about something:

A: Sorry, Kamu tidak apa-apakan?

(Sorry, are you okay?)

B: Tidak usah khawatir, aku tidak apa-apa.

(Do not worry, I am okay?)

d. Interjection (inserting sentence fillers or sentence connectors)

Interjection is words or expressions inserted within a sentence to express amazement, surprise, or to get attention. Interjection is a short exclamation such as: Darn!, Hey!, Well!, Look!, etc. This expression have no grammatical value, but people uses these expressions quite often, usually more in speaking than in writing. The following are examples of the usage of interjection in sentences:

Omg! Diagentengbanget!

(Omg! He is very handsome!)

e. Repetition used for clarification

If bilingual or multilingual people want to clarify the speech so that it can be understood better by the people, these people can sometimes use both of the languages (codes) to say the equal message. Frequently, the content in one code is repeated in another code literally. A repetition is not only functioned to clarify what people said, but also to emphasize the content.

“Aku sedih banget, so sad.”

(I am so sad, so sad)

f. Expressing group identity

Code switching and code mixing can be expressed a group identity. The communication of academic people in particular disciplinary, are totally different with another group. Thus, communication of a community is absolutely different from the people outside the community.

A: “Dinda, lulus ujian Syntax?”

(Dinda, have you pass the syntax exam?)

B: “Kamu tidak perlu bertanya jelas saja tidak.”

(You do not need to ask the answer is absolutely not)

4. The Causes of The Students Do Outer Code Mixing¹⁸

- a. Outer Code mixing is caused by the participants roles and relationship with whom the writer interact to Communication is the process of deliver the ideas between two or more participants of conversation that include the writer and the reader. The writer adapts the language’s reader when they talk. Therefore, it causes outer code mixing in their communication.

- b. Outer Code mixing is caused by consideration of the situational factors including the setting or topic of the participants

The writer mixes the language to adjust the particular situation for reader in communication. Outer Code mixing frequently occurs in informal situation. Hence, it is inappropriate to use in formal situation.

- c. Outer Code mixing is done because the intrinsic factors of the message given by the writer to give the quotations, topic comment, idiom, caption and deep-rooted cultural wisdom to the participants ¹⁸ Eunhe Kim, “Reason and Motivations for Code-Mixing and Code-Switching,” Tesoljournal, 2 (2006), 16.

The writer use code mixing to make quotation, topic comment, idiom, and wisdom word. It can also use to deliver the message of the writer. The aim of outer code mixing is to give the clear meaning for the reader.

- d. Outer Code mixing is caused by the inability to find an appropriate English vocabulary or expression

The writer change word or phrase from one language to another language because they have inability to find appropriate word or expression. The inability is caused by lack of vocabulary in language. Hence, they do outer code mixing in one language to another language.

- 5. The way to minimize outer code mixing on Instagram writing¹⁹
 - a. Understanding of the importance of English in social media communication

People must know two or more languages, especially English in this globalization era. People must use English in their daily activity not only in the speaking activity but also in writing through social media for communication.

- b. Enriching the English vocabulary

The globalization era, the mastery of English vocabulary is important even not only one language but also two or more languages. It can help enriching English vocabulary and expand knowledge. Hence, we can use full with one language without mixing it.

c. Communicating with native speaker through Instagram

Native speaker helps to reduce code mixing. The reader can communicate with native speaker to train their speaking or writing through media social fluently. Therefore, they can increase their vocabulary.

CHAPTER III

RESEARCH METHODOLOGY

A. The Types and Characteristics of Research

The researcher considers the phenomena of outer code mixing used on Instagram to be explored. The researcher decides to use qualitative research to know the most dominant form of outer code mixing on Instagram writing, to investigate the causes of outer code mixing on Instagram writing, and to give solution to minimize outer code mixing on Instagram writing posted by the students of English Education Department in the seventh semester at IAIN Metro.

The type of this research is qualitative research. Qualitative research is research that aim to reveal the fact of social phenomenon in human life.²⁰ Based on definition, it can be concluded that qualitative research is the research that investigate to get understanding the problem of human or social by individual or groups in deep analysis. The aim of qualitative research is describing and to explain the phenomenon. The understanding of phenomenon gets from investigate and describe the phenomenon through narration. The research procedure of qualitative research that result descriptive data written or spoken from the participants and the behavior that is observed.

²⁰John W. Creswell, Research Design Qualitative, Quantitative, and Mixed Methods Approaches, Third Edition (USA: SAGE, 2009), 4.

The characteristic of this research focuses on the descriptive qualitative research. A survey taken by the researcher to describe phenomena and to describe summarize. The survey is used to get a good step of certain thing in the descriptive research. In line with the explanation above, the researcher uses descriptive qualitative research to do this research entitled “An Analysis of Outer Code Mixing on Insatgram Posted by English Education Department Student at State Institute for Islamic Studies of Metro”.

B. Data Resources

In this research the researcher divides the sources into two items. They are primary and secondary sources.

1. Primary sources

The primary sources of this research are the written document of the seventh semester student got from online written discourse, particularly from Instagram. In addition, another the primary source of this research is the result of the interview that was conducted by asking some questions to the English Education Departments students.

2. Secondary sources

The secondary source in this research is from the documentation result, the books both in the printed form and in electronic book, and the academic articles written in journals that are related to the research.

C. Data Collecting Technique

The data are important in the scientific research. The data collection is used to develop the theory based on the analyzing the data. The researcher uses document to collect the data in this research. The researcher takes documents from the students' written document got from online written discourse, particularly from Instagram. In the process of collecting the data, the researcher collects the students' written document got from online written discourse, particularly from Instagram to know the most dominant forms of outer code mixing on Instagram writing, to investigate the causes of outer code mixing on Instagram writing, and to give solution to minimize outer code mixing on Instagram writing posted by the students of English Education Department in the seventh semester at IAIN Metro.

In this research the researcher used three techniques to collect the data that are observation, documentation, and interview.

1. Observation

Observation is the main data collection in qualitative research method.²¹ In this research, the researcher observed the students' writing document got from online written discourse, particularly from Instagram. The process of observation was done by referring to the research questions.

²¹*Ibid.*, 431

2. Documentation

The researcher uses documentation technique to collect the data in this research. In the qualitative research, document is valuable source of information. The researcher got the data from the students' written document got from online written discourse, particularly from Instagram.

3. Interview

According to Donald Ary, interview is data collecting technique related to the opinion and the information get from people.²² Interview is the process gather data from participants. The researcher gives question for participants and gets the answer.

According to Donald Ary, interview consist of three types there are structured interview, unstructured interview, and semi or partially structured interview.²³ According to Nigel Fielding's in Gibson and Brown interview is conducted in various ways there are face to face, telephone, online chat-room, email, etc.²⁴ Therefore, interview can be done face to face, telephone, online chat-room, and email to get the information.

The researcher used structured interview with the mode online chat-room in this research. The numbers of students that had been interviewed were 20. In this case, the researcher conducted the interview to the students in order to investigate the causes of the students do code mixing and to give solution to minimize outer code mixing on Instagram posted by the students of English Education Department in the seventh semester at IAIN Metro.

D. Data Analysis Technique

Analysis of the data is essential part in the research study, because the result becomes a conclusion from all of the research. Analysis as three concurrent flows of activity that are data condensation, data display, and conclusion drawing/verification.

The researcher would apply interactive model to analyze the data. The components of this analysis model are pictured by this figure.

Data analysis by Matthew B. Miles and A. Michael Huberman conducts the following steps:²⁵

1. Data Collection

Data collection means the process of the researcher collect data. The researcher collects the data based on the aim or objectives of the research. In this case, the researcher collect the data by documentation of writing English Education Department student in Instagram.

2. Data Condensation

Data condensation is the process of selecting, focusing, simplifying, abstracting, and transforming the data from interview transcripts, documents, and other materials. In this case, the researcher specified the data related to the use of code mixing in online written discourse, particularly in Instagram by referring to the research questions.

3. Data Display

A display is a step of data processing consist of arranging and display information to conclude. In this case, the researcher displayed the research data by using word.

4. Conclusion Drawing and verification

It is the final step of data processing to show the core of the research. It is used to display the research result. After getting the research results, the researcher concluded them clearly by answering the research questions.

²⁵Matthew B. Miles, A. Michael Huberman, and Johnny Saldana, Qualitative Data Analysis, Third Edition (USA: SAGE, 2014), 31-33.

E. Research Approach

In this research the researcher used six steps in the process of research, as follows:²⁶

1. Identifying a Research Problem

The researcher analyzed the phenomenon that happen in the process of research. Identifying a research problem begins with identifying the topic based on the phenomenon. It consists of specifying issues to study, developing a fact for studying, and suggesting the significance of the study.

2. Reviewing the Literature

Reviewing the literature is investigate the theory that related to the topic of research. It refers to the academic literature that can be developed in research topic. It was got by the researcher in scientific book, journal, journal article from various sources both online or offline source.

3. Specifying a Purpose for Research

The next step after identifying a research problem and reviewing the literature is specifying purpose for research. Specifying purpose for research is main center for researcher. The aim is to solve the problem to know the researcher be able to achieve or not the research.

4. Collecting Data

The researcher collected the data uses various instrument to support the research. The instruments are observation, documentation, and ²⁶John W. Creswell, Educational Research: Planning, Conducting, and Evaluating Quantitative and Qualitative Research, Fourth Edition (USA: Pearson, 2012), 7.

interview. The collecting data refers to the researcher's objective and it is developed based on academic literature.

5. Analyzing and Interpreting the Data

The next step after collecting data is analyzing and interpreting the data. The researcher analyze the data based on the research objective. The aim of it is to answer the research objective. The next step is interpreting the data to investigate the research result.

6. Reporting and Evaluating Research

The final step is reporting and evaluating the research. The researcher developed a written report and distribute that use the information.
