CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

A. Background of study

Language plays an important role in our life, because it is used by human being for expressing ideas, feeling, and expectation to the others. English is an international language has been used to communication. The purpose of Teaching English as foreign language is to enable the people to use language in communication in oral and written.

Although, to get a success in our live especially national and international interaction, English Language Teaching (ELT) must be given more attention. English Language Teaching (ELT) have 5 aspects when attention give to the students' namely is a learning context, vocabulary, experience studies, teaching strategy, and rule of study.

However, teaching English have many emphasizes such as speaking, listening, writing and reading. Speaking is an interactive process of constructing meaning that involves producing, receiving and processing information. In speaking activities many people has some difficulties to speak well, like meaning and vocabulary. But, to communicate people just have to understand each other.

Moreover, in our country have many organization. For example a Youth Organization. Youth Organization is the organization that have a young people who life in the village. Youth Organization in pekon Suka Negara Pesisir Barat there are beside Lampung Barat province of Lampung. In this Youth Organization actually have 50 members, but in this research the researcher choose 20 members for getting the data. The difficult to communicate in every members of Youth Organization is trouble in this research. In Youth Organization there are some activities or programs. Some activities and program has benefit to their village and each member. For example, the benefit in activities or programs is to make better for each member or the people in their village. In this case the researcher have analyze about the difficulties of Youth Organization in using English for communication. The use English in Youth Organization maybe can make them to be better in communication, especially in speaking activities.

The writer have gotten the pra-survey by some observation and interview to each member of Youth Organization. The observation and interview has do for 20 members of Youth Organization and the result is 15 members have difficult to communication especially in vocabulary and meaning, 5 members not have any difficult to communication.

Furthermore, in communication process, speaking is consider as the most difficult thing for student especially to understand about the meaning and vocabulary. For instance students still take too much time to compose utterances, spoken English does not sound natural, poor in pronunciation, less confidence and feel nervous.

CHAPTER II

THEORETICAL REVIEW

A. The Concept of English Language

1. The Definition of English Language

First, according to Sapir said that English language is purely human non-instinctive method of communicating ideas, emotions and desires by means of voluntarily produced symbols.[1]

Second, David Crystal said that English is also the language of international air traffic control, and the chief language of world publishing, science and technology.[2]

Third, English Language is combinations of symbols and rule as a socially acceptable code or conventional system of delivering concepts said Owen.[3]

Fourth, by Tarin said that English Language is a system that systematically, perhaps also for generative system of English.[4]

By some definition above the researcher conclude that English Language is international air traffic control by using combinations of symbols and rules as socially acceptable code.

2. The Linguistic Study of Language

Language in general meaning have much expert explain different, to study about language the linguistic have some key of concept there are[5]:

a. Who these book are for

It means that all English Teacher use not just one book to teach the student. Student must learn to communicate appropriately about math, chemistry, history, and every other school subject. Teaching student these skills necessary extends across the curriculum.

b. How to use the books are for

We use certain typographical marks to help you focus on key points. Important terms are bolded. You can find their definitions in the text and in the glossary.

c. Communication

Communication occurs when one person acts with the intention of influencing the mind of another. For example, by getting him/her to entertain some idea, and when that other person recognizes the first person's intention to influence his/her mind.

d. Language in Education

Language is central of education. It means that by which educational content is communicated. Language is a means of education in that it is the primary medium of communication between students and teachers or between students and textbooks.

[5]Delahunty Gerald P, The English Language from Sound to Sense, (Parlor Press, 2010), p. 3

3. English as Global Language

English is a language that use to international communication. In this world have many language that using in every country, especially in Indonesia that have many local language. To teaching English we have to know in globally how to correct speaking.

We have already seen how the proportion of native and non-native speakers has altered in the last few decades, the most popular accent in the world is British, American, and Australia[6]. Accent that often use in Indonesia especially is American. Because American accent is easier to teach be compared other accent.

In shakespeare's time, the number of English speakers in the world is thought to have been between five and seven million. According to linguist David Crystal, between the end of the reign of Elizabeth I (1603) and the beginning of the reign of Elizabeth II (1952), this figure increased almost fiftyfold, to around 250 million.[7] It is a common language used in international business, which makes it a popular second language for many. Roughly 500 million people in the world are native English speakers. Another 510 million people speak English as a second language, which means that there are more people who speak English along with their native speaker language than there are native English speakers.

English is taught as a foreign language in in over 100 countries. It is considered the language of business which makes it a popular choice for a second language. English language teachers are often paid very well in countries like China and Dubai. The form OK or okay is probably the most intensively and widely used word in the history of the language. It is many would-be etymologists have traced it variously to Cockney, French, Finnish, German, Greek, Norwegian, Scots, several African language, and the Native American language Choctaw as well as a number of personal names. All are imaginative feats without documentary support.[8]

[6]Harmer Jeremy, The Practice of English Language Teaching, (Pearson, 2010), p.17

[7]Crystal David, The Cambridge Encyclopedia of the English, (Cambridge University Press, 2003)

4. English for News and Information

English is commonly used as a medium for the communication of information and news. Three quarters of all telex messages and telegrams are sent in English.Eighty percent of computer data are processed and stored in English. Much satellite communication is carried in English. Five thousand newspapers, more than half of the newspapers published in the world, are published in English. Even in many countries where English is a minority language, there is at least one newspaper in English.

5. Psychological factors and English Speaking

For the past several decades, with the development of the international communication, English has become the world language. The teaching of oral English is improved to priority in the nations using English as a foreign language, including China. However, there has been a heated debate over the English speaking ability of students. Many linguists, educationists, and even the common English teachers have been devoted to explore the ways of improving spoken English. They investigated the factors related to the English speaking, such as social factors, teachers' influences, learners' strategies. These researches achieved a great success in the establishment of the concerning theories.

However, based on these researches, our teaching methods and techniques, to a larger extent, still failed to produce effective English speaking. To discover the reason any researcher turns to study the learners' psychology. Nowadays we have become increasingly aware that individual learners are different from each other. They have their own personalities, motivations, and other psychological characteristics.These elements affect how learners act in the spoken English learning.

6. Important Psychological Factors in Spoken English Teaching and Learning

Language is a tool of communication, so too is English. The ultimate aim of English teaching is to cultivate the students' ability of speaking and communication. Amongthe four skills of English learningreading, writing, listening and speaking. Reading is perhaps the easiest, while speaking the most difficult to acquire. That is because speaking is an activeskill, requiring students to combine the words into sentences without preparation, and no time to revise. During this process, learners show their differences, some can draw and organizethe information in their mind flexibly, and then speak it out fluently; others can'torganize the words they want to express in a reasonable and logical way

Eventhough they have mastered much knowledge and are eager to express. One of the important reasons is due to their psychological characteristics. English speaking is a complicated psychological process. In terms of spoken English teaching in schools, it's quite essential for teachers and learners to take some important psychological factors into accounts in order to achieve better results in spoken English teaching and learning. This part is a contribution to discuss some important psychological factors concerned.[9]

B. The Concept of Youth Organization

1. The Definition of Youth Organization

First, Youth Organization is generally understood to be non-profit and voluntary non-governmental associations can instead be part of the state apparatus or be youth worker-led said A Soco.[10]

Second, by oxford dictionary, Youth Organization is young people considered as a group.[11]

Third, in Wikipedia said that Youth Organization is a type of organization with a focus upon providing activities and socialization.[12]

Fourth, in African Youth Charter the definition of Youth Organization is the term youth and young people interchangeable to mean age 15-24 with the understanding that member states.[13]

[11]Oxford Dictionary

[12]https://en.m.wikipedia.org/wiki/List_of_youth_organizations, Tuesday, November 10, 2020

Based on the above explanation, the researcher get the conclusion that Youth Organization is a young people to mean age 15-24 years old that generally understood about providing activities and socialization in a group.

CHAPTER III

RESEARCH METHOD

A. Types and Characteristics Research

The researcher have used qualitative research in this research. The type of this research is a case study. According to Creswell, case study is where the researcher investigates in the depth of phenomenon, a program, an event, an activity, a process, or one more individual.[14]

Moreover, case study focuses on a single unit to produce an in-depth description that is rich and holistic.[15] Meanwhile, Fraenkel explains that case study is detailed study of one or (at most) a few individuals or other social units, such as: classroom, school, or neighborhood. It can also be a study of an event, an activity, or an on going process.[16]

The researcher assumes that case study is a systematic collection of information about a person, group, or community, social setting or event in order to gain insight into the functioning. A case is bound in time and place. Regarding to case study, researcher collected the data through interview and documentation from the participants. The goal of case study is to arrive at detailed description and understanding of the entity (the case).

[16]Jack R Fraenkel, How to design and Evaluate the Research in Education, (United State of America: Mc Graw Hill, Higher Education, 2016), p. 445

Meanwhile, the characteristic of a case study in qualitative research are: first, qualitative research uses multiple methods that are interactive and humanistic. The multiple methods can be applied appropriately the participant. Second, qualitative research is fundamentally interpretative. It can be assumed that the researcher have interpret the data. The researcher describes the participant, interpreting the data and then drawing the conclution about the data intended. Third, the qualitative research is descriptive. The data collected is in the form of words of picture rather than number. Fourth, the data qualitative research in research is analyzed inductively. Fifth, the qualitative research adopts and uses one or more strategies of inquiry as guide for the procedure in the qualitative study. Then the last, the qualitative research are concerned with process rather than simply with outcomes or products.

The research has been conducted to explore the phenomenon about students error and considers the importance of quality of students communicate to be explored. Therefore, the researcher decides used qualitative approach to investigate and to analyze the types, the reasons, and the solution of difficulties about using English for communication. The research has been conducted at Youth Organization PekonSuka Negara Pesisir Barat.

B. Data Resource

Data source of the research is got by documentation and interview. It means that the researcher got the data from purposive sample as the participants. In this research, in conducting the data resources, the researcher devided them into primary and secondary.

Primary data is the data resource which directly would be acquired by data collector. It means that the first hand data is Youth Organization responds about using English for communication had be obtained the researcher as an object of this research. In conducting this research, the researcher select twenty members of Youth Organization in PekonSuka Negara Pesisir Barat.

Secondary sources are helpful as begin review, to explore using English in communication. Examples of secondary sources are handbook, e-book, and select journal that relate to using English in communication.

C. Data Collection Technique

In conducting the research, it is extremely important to formulate the relevant technique of collecting data. Creswell explain that in many qualitative studies, inquires collect multiple forms of data and send a considerable time in the natural setting gathering information.[17]

Gathering the data, the researcher have used some instruments. The instruments which were used in conducting the research as follow:

[17]John W Cresswell, Research Design ; Qualitative, Quatitative and mixed Methods Approach, (London ; Sage Publication, 2003), p. 185

1. Observation

Creswell highlight that observation, in which the writer takes field notes on the behavior or activities or individual at the reseach site.[18] In other words, the researcher needs the field notes from individual behavior or activities in the reseach. The purpose of observation is to describe a situation in research, the individual are involved in the activities and relationship with situation. So that the reader of the report would understand clearly what happen and how the process occur in the activities. The writer will be observer in the field of research. The writer will directly observe the participants and take the data at Youth Organization in Pekon Suka Negara.

2. Documentation

The researcher have used documentation to collect the data in this research. Documents have been a valuable source of information in qualitative research. Creswell cited that documents represent public and private documents. Public documents provide in the form of minutes from meeting, official report. Example of private documents is personal journal and diaries, letters, and e-mails.[19] In this research the researcher would collect the primary data from the Youth Organization activity and important data such as history of Youth Organization, structure organization, total of the members Youth Organization.

[19]Ibid, p.180

3. Interview

To collect the data, in which the researcher conducts group whatsApp interviews with participants. Interviews participant by telephone, or engages in focus group inteviews, with sixt or eight interviewees in each group. These interviews involve unstructured and generally open-ended questions that are few in number and intended to elicit views and opinions from the participants.[20]In this research, the researcher have made interview with the twenty members by using grouping whatsApp in interview at the Youth Organization in Pekon Suka Negara.

This method was used to know the reason and the solution of the problem why they made bad responds about using English in communication. It was hopefully to know the causes of bad responds made in their using English tocommunication. Based on the problem, the researcher can give the solution to make the members of Youth Organization happy and interested about using English to communication.

D. Data Analysis Technique

This research would apply the Miles and Huberman model to analyze the data.[21] The components of this analysis model are pictured by this figure:

Data analysis by Miles and Huberman model conducts the following steps:

1. Data collection is the step when the writer gather all data which are used to complete the research.
2. The writer reduces the data he had gotten by summarizing and choosing specific things.
3. To display the data, the researcher usually uses graphics, figures, or charts. The display should be able to describe the content entire the data.
4. Lastly, the writer verifies his research by making conclusion of data findings.

Therefore, it is concluded that the analysis of data has some functions in analyze research data that include in, to make the meaningful raw data, to test null hypothesis, to get the significant results, to describe inferences or to make generalization, and to calculate parameters.

E. Research Approach

The researcher have applied case study in this research. Actually, case study has been associated with qualitative methods of analysis. The researcher choose this method because the researcher wanted to analyze the types, the reasons and the solution of difficultiesin using English to communication at the Youth Organization in PekonSuka Negara Pesisir Barat. The researcher would use qualitative research, the researcher applied step by step procedures in gaining the result of the research.

The last, members can practice and practice to communication English with other member, so it can be make the members confident to speaking English.

There are three problems but the most common problems were found is difficult to understand about English, less vocabulary, and some members not like English. It caused by the members difficulties to understand some meaning of the sentence. Based on the result of interview, the writer found that many members were still difficult to understand about meaning and some less vocabulary. They know about English but still do not know the meaning of sentence.

B. Suggestion

Through this research, the writer would like to give a suggestion as follow:

1. For the members of Youth Organization

   It is recommended for members to have good in speaking English, they need to mastery some vocabulary, understand about meaning each word and practice that English speaking to make them fluently.

2. For others researcher

   It is recommended for others researcher who choose same case in speaking English especially for members of Youth Organizations. They need to, if will gain the data it is better you come to their village and ask to each members. Because some problem especially corona virus the researcher can not come to their village.
