CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

A. Background of The Study

English is an international language. English is also used to convey any information. For our country, English provides many benefits, which help Indonesian people to keep up with the globalization, especially in increasing their knowledge, not just in science and technology, but also in art, literature, and entertainment.

Language is not just collections of symbol. To have a meaning, language needs rules or system to manipulate the symbols. In written and spoken language, especially English it calls Grammar. The grammar is a complex and highly structured problem because it works with terms and categories that need to be defined in the same way. Therefore, you need grammar to use English, and understanding grammar also affects your English proficiency.

Grammar is very important for every languages. Grammar has an important role in language, because Grammar is a component of any language. A language is difficult to comprehend without grammar. People will be unable to understand and communicate with one another if grammar is not used. Grammar is an essential component of any language. There is no language (at least no living or oral language) without sounds, and there is no language without grammar.¹

From the assertions above, we realize that Grammar and language cannot be separated. It means if someone will be able to speak any language, s/he must know about its grammar. In the other side, if someone does not know about grammar, s/he cannot speak the language or the listener will confuse to get the meaning or the message which is conveyed. So they cannot make any communication well in their conversation.

Gerund is a part of grammar we cannot ignore in learning English. The ability in understanding it is very important. Less understanding about it can make a serious problem. We will confuse even misunderstanding in getting the point or the meaning of the sentence if we do not understand gerund well. We cannot deny that understanding gerund is difficult. But looking at the importance of understanding it we have to learn it. By doing exercise it will help us to improve our competence in grammar, especially gerund.

Gerund has a power of a thing assuming that Gerund has a meaningful element, for example, having an article before it and having a plural thing. At the point when Gerund has a power of thing, it has considerable significance. Considerable is a word that can work as Gerund, an infinitive, and a thing. Gerund has a power as an action word on the off chance that Gerund has a verbal element, for example, having its own article and having change in the ideal and the aloof. At the point when

Gerund turns into a crossover since it has a thing structure however it has a verbal importance.²

The infinitive is the essential type of an action word, without an expression restricting it to a specific subject or tense. The infinitive expression starts with the word to. In any case, the infinitive might work as a subject, direct article, subject supplement, descriptive word, or intensifier in a sentence. Albeit an infinitive is not difficult to find in light of the to + action word structure, concluding which work it has in a sentence can some of the time be befuddling. The expression comprises of to, the infinitive (consistently an action word), its supplements, and its modifiers. The infinitive is the essential type of an action word, without an expression restricting it to a specific subject or tense. The infinitive expression starts with the word to. In any case, the infinitive might work as a subject, direct object, subject complement, adjective, or adverb in a sentence. Although an infinitive is not difficult to find in light of the to + verb form, deciding what function it has in a sentence can sometimes be confusing. The phrase consists of to, the infinitive (always a verb), its complements, and its modifiers. Examples: to buy, to cook, to go, to learn, to do, to sit, to grow, to bake, etc.

Gerund and to infinitive are the things which we must be learned in Grammar to make good sentences. Sometimes most of students still do not know verb which have a function as a complement must in gerund or infinitive form. Indeed, even they likewise don't know which specific action words, specific modifiers and specific things that suitable to go before Gerund and infinitive.

In communication, we make language by shaping words which have meaning and can be perceived by others. We may express our idea, sharing information and our feeling, in spoken or written form by using language. There are numerous ways of communicating with others due the development of technology. There are numerous media, regardless of whether electronic or printed media for sharing numerous data. We can get data all over the planet and everything occurs in a day from electronic and printed media.

Today, electronic/online media is being new trend. Electronic/online media has an important role in sharing information. People may get factual and accurate information just in a second. People can access all information by reading electronic/online media. They can access it everywhere and every time. They do not need to buy and bring magazine or newspaper, just access it from their gadget. Today in Indonesia there are so many electronic/online media which are can be source of information daily. One of media is The Jakarta Post.

The Jakarta Post is one of the media of information that greatest newspaper in Indonesia which is written in English. It gives much information about politics, economics, politic, education and entertainment to the society. The information about this newspaper is packaged in the article form and there are many kinds of gerund and to infinitive construction in the sentences. It means The Jakarta Post also has important role in developing language, especially English.

In this case, the writer takes article about the life style because it is interesting for students. Many students like to read the lifestyle articles because the article presents the topic related to the students' daily life. The reader can find verbs in English that function as nouns. Actually, in Indonesian there is no change in its forms in making a noun from a verb, but in English we must add the suffix -ing of the word. On the other hand, the -ing form of a verb is not always a noun.

To investigate English Department student of IAIN Metro about their understanding difficulties of gerund and infinitive word, the researcher conducted a pre-survey on December, 04th 2021. Because of the pandemic of Covid-19, the learning process in IAIN Metro did not allow the face to face learning. For this reason, a preliminary study was conducted via WhatsApp chat by sharing an article from The Jakarta Post. Some questions need to be answered by the student. The question is related to the analysis of gerunds and infinitives. The types of gerund and the function of gerund. In addition the researcher also got the data which is consist of grade that will be used for analyzing. The following are the result of pre-survey was conducted:

The result of pre-survey were categorized based on the grade criteria of English department of IAIN Metro students which is consist of A, B, C, D, and E. The result of categorization of pre-survey grade are summarized in the following table:

D. Prior Research

This research has been conducted in consideration of several previous researches. The first research was conducted by Grace Mekaria Unggul and Ingatan Gulö in the 2017 journal. This journal focuses on the usage of gerunds and infinitives that students use in controversial essays. This study identified grammatical problems that arose in controversial essays. Dulay's error theory and Harmer's grammar theory were used. The author used the classification method to classify errors into four types: omissions, additions, malformations, and inconsistencies. The method used was library research. In collecting the data, the researcher used the work from two classes at the college. The researcher inferred that the most well-known issue with utilizing "ing" words and infinitives is deformities. Understudies thought that it is hard to utilize "ing" words and infinitives. He additionally showed that training is expected to take care of understudies' grammatical problem.³

³Grace Mekaria Unggul and Ingatan Gulö, "An Analysis of Gerund and To Infinitive in Argumentative Essays" TEKNOSTATIK Vol. 15 (1), 2017, 1.

The second previous research was conducted by Retno Puspa Dewi. In her study, researchers seek to explain the function of gerunds in the Jakarta Post's "Headline" article, which helps readers understand the use of gerunds. The study method used in this study was a qualitative (substantial or documentary) study design. For data collection purposes, there are 12 "headline" articles from the Jakarta Post in this study, which were randomly selected from March 9-14, 2015, and researchers randomly selected two articles by date. I chose to. The function of the gerund found in the Jakarta Post "Headlines" article, the gerund as a prefix object, the gerund as the direct object of a particular verb, as the subject, based on the content or the result of document analysis. A gerund was found. A special expression followed by sentences and gerunds.⁴

The following previous research was conducted by Nina Emeninta Sinulingga. In her study, she analyzed the meaning of gerunds and the function of gerund positions in the Jakarta Post. Researchers collect some grammar books as author references and some articles in the Jakarta Post newspaper as data objects. Finally, the author of the ruler wants to show the function of the gerunds used in the Jakarta Post. She found information about some functions of gerunds in sentences and the position of gerunds in sentences.⁵

⁴Retno Puspa Dewi, An Analysis on The Function of Gerund in The Headline Articles of The Jakarta Post (Department of English Language Education Faculty of Teacher Training and Education University of Muhammadiyah Malang, 2015)

⁵Nina Emeninta Sinulingga, The Analysis of Gerunds Found in The Jakarta Post Newspaper (English Study Program Faculty of Letters University of Sumatera Utara Medan, 2011)

Based on the prior research above, the researcher found that all the prior research have similarity with this research. The similarity is about analyze of gerund. The difference of this research with the prior research is about object of the study and focus of study. In the first prior research, the object of the study is the argumentative essay written by students. The second and last prior research, focus of study is just about gerund, while this research also analyze about infinitive word.

CHAPTER II

LITERATURE REVIEW

A. The Concept of Grammar

1. The Definition of Grammar

Grammar is a set of rules that allow words to be combined into larger units of a language.⁶ May mean analytical and terminological study of sentences. Therefore, when learning Grammar, we will learn part of speech, names, explanations, and concepts such as phrases, clauses, question sentences, and retained objects. We will also learn how to identify or analyze these categories in text.⁷ As such, language structure is an efficient information or hypothesis of sentence designs. Furthermore, the meaning of Grammar is the hypothesis of language, the hypothesis of how a language is developed and the way in which it works. All the more especially, it is the investigation of.⁸

From the definitions above we can conclude that Grammar is part of language which cannot be separated from the language itself. Because grammar is study how the language can be understand both in written or spoken form.

⁶Sidney Greenbaum and Gerald Nelson, An Introduction to English Grammar (London: Longman, 2002) 2.

⁷Paul Robert, Understanding English (New York: Harper, 1958) 132.

⁸Linda Gerot and Peter Wignell, Making Sense of Functional Grammar (Australia: Gerd Stabler, 1994) 2.

2. The Importance of Learning Grammar

Knowing these definitions of grammar, we can conclude that grammar is very essential and important to every language. Grammar itself is a piece of a language since without Grammar a language is pointless. Without Grammar, individuals cannot communicate with others. Similarly as there is no language without sounds (no live or oral language), so there is no language without grammar.⁹

From the statement above we realize that Grammar and language cannot be separated. It intends that assuming somebody can communicate in a language he should know the Grammar of the language. Then again in the event that somebody doesn't have a clue about the sentence structure he cannot communicate in that language or the audience members will be befuddled in getting the message, so they won't ever have the option to speak with one another. As such, without knowing the sentence structure of the language, one can't be said to have taken in the language, and without learning Grammar it appears to be difficult to gain proficiency with a language since the Grammar tells about the language use. Hence, the speakers should gain proficiency with the Grammar

The grammar also supports speakers in communication and prevents errors. For example, in English punctuation somebody needs to say The boy who is wearing a black shirt is my brother. After he picks the suitable words (The, boy, who, is, wearing, a, black, shirt, is, my, brother) he needs to track down the fitting method for building the words syntactically. If he does not know grammar, he will be misunderstood. The listeners will be confused in trying to understand what he means. Perhaps, he will say My brother is wearing a black shirt who is the boy or A black shirt my brother is wearing who is the boy. If this happens, the listeners will try very hard to catch his ideas.

Like English or other language grammars, Indonesian grammar is also very important. If someone wants to speak Indonesian, at least he should know the Indonesian grammar in order to make his listeners understand. For instance, Dia berbaju biru muda is acceptable. The prefix ber- in the word bertopi means memakai (wearing). But Dia membaju biru muda or Dia terbaju biru muda is not acceptable because the prefix me- and ter- are meaningless in the context. Even though the prefix ber-, me-, and ter- have the same meaning in making a verb, they are not meaningful in every sentence.

From the clarification above; obviously grammar is extremely fundamental and important, and furthermore it can't be separated from the language. Without grammar a language is meaningless and pointless.

B. The Concept of Gerund

1. The Definition of Gerund

Gerund is a verb form that can be used in place of a noun or pronoun.¹⁰ Gerund is traditionally understood as words derived from a verb base that functions as nouns or like nouns.¹¹ Gerund is a verb – ing functioning as a noun. This –ing form is a part of noun and a part of verb since it is formed from a verb.¹² Gerund is used as the attribute suffix of the noun. The main stress occurs in gerunds rather than nouns (as if the participle now precedes the noun). Another explanation is that gerunds are a form of verb ending in –ing and have the power of nouns and verbs.¹³

From the definition above, gerund is verbs that function as nouns, or gerund is verbs that are used as nouns. Gerund is formed by:

verb + ing (noun)

2. The Forms of Gerund

The gerund is an –ing form. It can be simple or perfect, active or passive:

	Active	Passive
Simple gerund	Cooking	being cooked
Perfect gerund	having cooked	having been cooked

¹³Kunkun Kurniadi, Getting Progress Integrated English Exercises (Bandung: Pasundan University Press, 1999), 94.

Note the changes in spelling when forming the simple gerund:

speak » speaking

play » playing

borrow » borrowing

relax » relaxing

beat » beating

hide » hiding; argue » arguing (a final -e is omitted)

agree » agreeing (a final -ee does not change)

die » dying (a final -ie changes to -y-)

cut » cutting; regret » regretting; readmit » readmitting (double the final consonant if the verb ends with consonant – vowel – consonant, with the exception of w, x and y and only has one syllable or has the stress on the last syllable).

In the negative sentences, word “not” usually placed before the gerund:

There are many benefits of consuming honey.

There are many benefits of not consuming honey.

In some cases, the verb in the main clause is negative, not the gerund:

He like fishing at the river.

He doesn't like fishing at the river.

The gerund itself does not have tense, so it may not indicate the time of the action referenced by the gerund itself. However, it can indicate whether this tense is equal to or earlier than the tense of the verb in the main clause.

Simple gerund

The simple gerund can refer at the same time as verb in the main clause:

He likes discussing with me. (discussing refers to the same time as like: He likes when we discuss)

The simple gerund can also refer to the time before that of the verb in the main clause:

I do not remember saying anything to my mother. (saying refers to a time before do not remember: I don't remember that I said anything to my mother.)

Perfect gerund

The perfect Gerund refers to a time before that of the verb of the main clause. Notwithstanding, it is possibly utilized in the event that the hour of the activity communicated by the Gerund isn't clear from the context:

She justified being married. (the simple gerund being refers to the same time as justified: He justified that she was married.)

She justified having been married. (the perfect gerund having been refers to a time before justified: She justified that she had been married.)

If an earlier time is meant, we may use the simple gerund:

She denied cheating me. (She denied that she had cheated me.)

Passive gerunds

Passive forms are also possible:

I hate being betrayed. (passive simple gerund: I hate it when people betray me.)

3. The Functions of Gerund

a. Gerund as Subject

Example : Reading book is her hobby since she was a child.

Notes : gerunds may replace the position of nouns or pronouns as subjects, objects or complements in the sentence.

b. Gerund as Object of a Preposition

Example : He is interested in speaking British English.

c. Gerund as Object of a Verb

Example : I enjoy reading novel written by Andrea Hirata.

d. Gerund as Complement

Example : His hobby is painting.

e. Gerund as Negative Gerund

Example : Most of student complain about not getting accurate information.

f. Gerund as Possessive with a Gerund

Example : Tom's (His) painting is very beautiful.

C. The Concept of Infinitive

The infinitive is a verb that can be utilized in an assortment of ways.¹⁴ The infinitive is a verb that can be utilized instead of a thing or pronoun.¹⁵ The infinitive can be a to-infinitive or a bare infinitive (without to). There is no distinction in importance between them; a few designs require a to-infinitive, while others require a bare infinitive.

1. To-Infinitive

To-Infinitive consists of the simple form of "to" + verb, but

"to" can be omitted if the infinitive follows a particular verb.

1) To Infinitive as Subject

Example : to make a salty egg needs many steps.

Notes : infinitive may replace noun as object of verb and as subject.

2) To Infinitive as with It

CHAPTER III

RESEARCH METHOD

A. The Types and Characteristics of Research

In this study, the researcher will consider the importance of understanding Gerund and Infinitive word. The researcher uses qualitative research to analyze the understanding difficulties of Gerund and Infinitive word in the Article of the Jakarta Post among English Department Students at IAIN Metro.

Qualitative research is a type of research that investigates peculiarities in the indigenous habitat and utilizations various techniques to interpret, understand, explain, and give meaning.¹⁸ This means that qualitative research is research that investigates or investigates phenomena in a natural environment that explains, understands, and interprets phenomena in various ways.

The purpose of qualitative research is to explain, observe, and explain phenomena. Understanding the phenomenon can be achieved through explanatory and narrative research. This means that the research procedure will generate written or verbal descriptive data of the participants and the observed behavior. It is also a descriptive study that suggests gathering up-to-date information, identifying problems, making comparisons or decisions, and learning from the experience of others to make decisions. In this case, this study aims to investigate the students' understanding difficulties of gerund and infinitive word, to analyze the causes of understanding difficulties, and to explore the solution to solve the understanding difficulties of gerund and infinitive word in the article of the Jakarta Post. This research has characteristics that focus on descriptive qualitative research. In descriptive qualitative research, the researcher conducts a survey that is used to describe or explain a phenomenon briefly.

The descriptive qualitative method is suitable for this study, as Sugiyono states that the author was guided to investigate and understand the social situation analyzed by formulating the descriptive problem. Analyzing and investigating descriptive language forms requires a descriptive qualitative approach.¹⁹ Qualitative research is also a comprehensive concept that includes various forms of research to help understand and explain the nature of social phenomena without disturbing the natural environment as much as possible.²⁰ The descriptive qualitative approach is expected to investigate and explore composed language structure. It can assist people with acquiring the significance from social peculiarities in this term, for example, expressions which generally spread and create through an ideal opportunity to time. Descriptive qualitative research is useful because it can provide important information about the average member of a group.²¹

It can be concluded that descriptive research can be used to collect data by describing the performance of a member to be studied so that it can produce information.

B. Data Resources

In this study, the researcher uses two kinds of data sources, namely primary and secondary resource.

1. Primary Sources

Primary sources are the most important main research sources that can be used to answer all research questions or original materials that become the basis of research. It is a testimony or direct evidence about the topic to be considered. Primary sources provide information in its original form, not interpret, summarize, or consider by other authors. The primary source of this research is observation of students' understanding of gerund and infinitive word at IAIN Metro.

The article that will analyze is article which was published on Friday, March 11, 2022, under the title "Lombok Writers Festival 2022, a Celebration for NTB's Young Writers". In this research the researcher focuses on 15 students of sixth semester of English education department at IAIN Metro for the sample.

²¹Geoffrey Marczyk et. al., Essentials of Research Design and Methodology (Canada: John Wiley & Sons, Inc. 2005), 16.

2. Secondary Sources

Secondary sources suggest a clarification or investigation in light of primary sources. It can describe primary sources and regularly use to help a specific thesis or assessment or to ensure the peruse to acknowledge a specific perspective. In this study, secondary sources are interviews, documentation, journals, e-books and other articles that relate to research.

C. Data Collecting Technique

Qualitative data collection consists of gathering information that utilization structures with general inquiries that emerge to allow the member to deliver reactions, gather word (text) or (picture) information, and gather data from few people or sites. Related to this case, the specialist utilizes three procedures to gather the information in particular perception, meeting and documentation.

1. Observation

Observation is an activity that uses the five senses in the form of sight, smell and hearing to make observations so the researcher can obtain the information needed by researchers. Some of the information acquired from perceptions is space (place), actor, activity, objects, actions, occasions or occasions, time, and sentiments. The explanation scientists direct perceptions is to introduce a practical portrayal of conduct or occasions, to address questions, to help. Comprehend human conduct, and for assessment, to be specific estimating specific perspectives, giving input on these estimations.

2. Interview

The researchers used interview techniques, researchers chose in-depth interviews, in conducting the interview process researchers needed 15 students of English Department of IAIN Metro to conduct interviews, data generated from interviews are for re-checking or evidence of information and information from the results obtained previously. Interviews were used to determine the factors of difficulty in understanding gerund and infinitive word in the article of the Jakarta Post. Some of the reasons that researchers consider to choose open interviews are open interviews which allow students to use unique ways of defining something. Researchers may not only focus on interview guidelines but focus more on statements or answers from students so that the information disclosed by students is easier to understand and also allows researchers to dig deeper into what is conveyed by students.

3. Documentation

The researcher can utilize composed archives or different items to get a comprehension of the peculiarity that will study. For this situation, the researcher involves document techniques in collecting the data. Documents can be a significant source of information in qualitative research. Documents can address public and private documents. Thus, the secondary data that need is documented as a source of data in the form of documentation.

D. Data Analysis Technique

Data analysis is a vital element of research since all of the data gathered will be examined and the results will be presented in the final report. Qualitative data often comprises the findings of interviews, field notes, observations, and documentation. The data will be analyzed and explained in depth by the researchers. The researcher will utilize the Miles and Huberman model to analyze the data.

Analysis Components of Miles and Huberman Model

Components of data analysis of Miles and Huberman model includes:²²

²²Matthew B. Miles, A. Michael Huberman, and Johnny Saldana, Qualitative Data Analysis: A Methods Sourcebook, 4th ed. (California: Sage Publications, Inc, 2019), 33.

1. The first phase is data collection, which requires gathering all information from the outcomes of researchers' interviews, observations, and student vocabulary papers in order to complete the research.
2. The second, by specifying the data relevant to this research, the researcher will simplify the data that has been acquired.
3. The third step is to show the data and discuss its general content. The study findings are presented in the form of a word.
4. Finally, after finishing data analysis and receiving study findings, the researcher may reach conclusions regarding his research.

As a result, data analysis is one of the most critical activities in the research process.

CHAPTER IV

RESULT AND DISCUSSION

A. Research Result

1. Profile of State Institute for Islamic Studies of Metro

a. The Historical Background of IAIN Metro

IAIN Metro is only one of Islamic Institute in Metro. IAIN Metro is change of status from STAIN Jurai Siwo Metro. It is dedicated in 2017 based on the decision of Presidents No. 71 on 1 August 2016. IAIN prepared this change since 2010. From 2011, STAIN Jurai Siwo Metro continued to strive for the development of STAIN Jurai Siwo Metro to be IAIN Metro.

STAIN Jurai Siwo Metro was established on April 23-25, 1997, based on President RI No. 11's explanation letter. The history of IAIN Raden Intan Bandar Lampung cannot be separated from the establishment of STAIN Jurai Siwo Metro. IAIN Raden Intan Bandar Lampung arose from the efforts of a group of elite and religious leaders who formed the Lampung Islamic Welfare Foundation (YKIL). In the YKIL conference, it was decided to establish two faculties in Tanjung Karang: the Education faculty and the Islamic Law faculty. The status of the Islamic Law Faculty was changed from private to state on October 13, 1964, thanks to the tireless efforts of YKIL.

According to Indonesian President No. 27, 1963, YKIL must have at least three faculties in order to complete Al-Jami'ah. As a result, in 1965, YKIL established the Ushuludin Faculty at Tanjung Karang. The initial step for the establishment of STAIN Al-Jami'ah in Lampung was to make all Faculties that were still privately owned at the time state-owned. Finally, based on the Decree of the Minister of Religious Affairs of RI No. 187/68, it realized the goal of Lampung society to found STAIN Al-Jami'ah, which was titled " State Islamic Institute Raden Intan Tanjung Karang". In 1993, the name of the capital province of Lampung was changed from Tanjung Karang to Bandar Lampung, STAIN Raden Intan Tanjung Karang was also changed to STAIN Raden Intan Bandar Lampung.

In line with the above statement, the English Language Education Department is constantly striving to improve the quality of its teaching and learning process. In fact, there is a dynamic, open and polite relationship between the stakeholders of the TBI IAIN Metro.

2. Description of Data Analysis

In this chapter, the researcher specifically analyzed the students' difficulties in understanding Gerund and Infinitive in the article of the Jakarta Post and find out the reason why the students get difficulties. Researcher collected the primary data from the students' analysis about gerund and infinitive in the article of the Jakarta Post and interview result.

The data were taken from 15 students at sixth semester of English department of IAIN Metro. In analyzing the data, the writer applied Miles and Huberman's model. Based on Miles and Huberman's model, the steps in analyzing the data were data reduction, data display, and conclusion.

For the first step, the writer collected the data, chose the main data, focused on the most important data, and decided the theme and the pattern. The writer collected the data from interview and observation. Then the writer only focused the research in finding the problem in error analysis the gerund and infinitive. Afterwards, the writer also interviewed the students about what students' difficulties in understanding gerund and infinitive.

The next step was data display. Here, the writer would make presentation about the data which were collected and reduced it into the simple explanation. The last step, the writer made the conclusion about the data which were conducted

3. Description of Findings

a. Data Findings

Finding of the research Finding of the research conducted by the researcher focuses in the difficulties of students in analyzing Gerund and infinitive in the article of the Jakarta Post.

In collecting the data of the first research question, the researcher used the techniques of observation. Therefore, the instrument is observation sheet. The data result of observation sheet related with type of students' difficulties in understanding gerund and infinitive in the article of the Jakarta Post.

In conducting an analysis related to the types of students difficulties in understanding gerund and infinitive, the researcher collected data by giving an article from the Jakarta Post and the task about gerund and infinitive related to the article. The first question asked to the students to mention how many gerund and infinitive they found from the article. The second question asked to the students to write sentences which formed by gerund and infinitive. And the last question the researcher asked to analyze the function of gerund and infinitive from the sentences they had found. From the questions had been given, the researcher analyzed the students' difficulties which consist of: the difficulties of determine a sentence which formed by gerund and infinitive in a text and the difficulties in identifying the function of gerund and infinitive in a sentence.

From the answer sheet of the students, the researcher found their difficulties in understanding gerund and infinitive in the article of the Jakarta Post. Either difficulty in determining sentence formed with gerund and infinitive or difficulty in identifying the function of gerund and infinitive in the sentence they found. The students' answer is presented below:

The first question is, How many gerund and infinitive do you find in the article of the Jakarta Post? The correct answer is six gerunds and five infinitives.

In this case there is no students give right answer. The student code BC answer 10 gerund and 4 infinitive, the other answer is AE that write “there are four gerund and three infinitive”, whereas SM answer only 1 gerund and did not find any infinitive.

The second question is, Write the sentences which formed by Gerund and infinitive! This question/command asked the students to determine sentences which formed with gerund and infinitive from the article and write them in their answer sheet.

In this case there are many difficulties experienced by students, the difficulty is error in determining sentences formed with gerund and infinitive. For example: Student code AS answer “Taking place in Gili Trawangan, West Nusa Tenggara (NTB), Lombok Writers Festival 2022 was officially held on March 9 to 10. AS determine that word Taking in the sentence is gerund”. Then, student code SM answer that only found one gerund and she only wrote word “writing”, not sentence. Next, student code BC answer “Lombok Writers Festival 2022 also included talk shows throughout its two-day runtime from speakers including culinary creator and food author Kevindra Soemantri and famed travel writer Trinity. BC determine that word “including” is gerund, the correct one is preposition.”

Besides the difficulty in determining the gerund, the students also get difficulty in determining infinitive. For example: student code SM did not find infinitive, and there are eight students had same error. The error is answer “The two-day event saw various participants made up of local high schools and university students, from State Vocational High School (SMK) 2 Tanjung to Muhamaddiyah Mataram University. The students write that to Muhamaddiyah Mataram University is infinitive.”

The third question is, “What is the function of gerund and infinitive which you found?”. After the students determining the sentences formed with gerund and infinitive from the article, the students analyzed the function of gerund and infinitive in each sentence they have written.

In this case, all of students had errors in identifying the function of gerund and infinitive in the sentence they wrote. For example: there are five students that did not answer the function of gerund and infinitive clearly and correctly in each sentences. They only wrote the function generally. Student code SW answer: “As noun and as object.” KW answer: “To complete the sentence.” BC answer: “To refers to the object or purpose of the sentence. –Ing or gerund functions as an activity.” SM answer: “Explain as a verb” and IA answer: “The function is as an object and subject”.

Based on the students answer above, the researcher found two kinds of students difficulties in understanding gerund and infinitive in the article of the Jakarta Post. The first is difficulty in determining gerund and infinitive in a text. The second is difficulty in identifying the function of gerund and infinitive in a sentence.

Lombok Writers Festival 2022, a celebration for NTB's young writers

Radhiyya Indra(Jakarta Post)
Jakarta • Friday, March 11, 2022

Taking place in Gili Trawangan, West Nusa Tenggara (NTB), Lombok Writers Festival 2022 was officially held on March 9 to 10.

The festival, organized by the digital news platform IDN Times, opened on Wednesday with remarks from NTB Governor Zulkieflimansyah, IDN Times editor-in-chief Uni Lubis and State-Owned Enterprises (SOEs) Minister Erick Thohir — the latter giving his speech virtually.

Born from an idea shared by Zulkieflimansyah and IDN Times, the writing festival was a spin-off of the annual Indonesia Writers Festival (IWF). It was held with the aim of providing training related to content production and optimization, especially for young Indonesians in NTB.

Bringing the theme #ExplorAsikNTB (explore NTB joyfully), Lombok Writers Festival 2022 invited young writers to promote NTB through workshops and writing competitions.

The two-day event saw various participants made up of local high schools and university students, from State Vocational High School (SMK) 2 Tanjung to Muhamaddiyah Mataram University.

“The hope is that Lombok Writers Festival can become a regular event in NTB and will train more young Indonesians to become writers who are able to present the many events that happen in NTB,” Zulkieflimansyah said in his speech.

Meanwhile, Uni Lubis said the festival was a public literacy effort. “[It is] a learning space for young Indonesians, especially in NTB, so that they are able to promote the potential of NTB through writing.”

“The role of writers in the era of technological transformation and digitalization is very much needed, especially in the creative industries,” Erick Thohir said during his speech. He also hoped that the participants could write productively about Lombok, especially Mandalika’s Pertamina International Circuit. The region will stage the 2022 MotoGP Indonesian Grand Prix, which will be held from March 18 to 20.

Lombok Writers Festival 2022 also included talk shows throughout its two-day runtime from speakers including culinary creator and food author Kevindra Soemantri and famed travel writer Trinity.

The entire festival is accessible to watch on IDN Times’ YouTube channel.
